Program objectives
1. Appreciate the spectrum of manifestations and potential complications of various types of spondyloarthritis.
2. Compare/contrast ankylosing spondylitis and axial spondyloarthritis, and devise an appropriate diagnostic strategy.
3. Review clinical manifestations and diagnostic features of psoriatic arthritis.
4. Discuss the prospect of disease modification for ankylosing spondylitis.
5. Develop a comprehensive management strategy for treating articular and cutaneous components of psoriatic arthritis.
6. Describe the clinical presentation of reactive arthritis and develop an appropriate management strategy.
7. Distinguish between various subtypes of psoriasis and how to stratify therapy accordingly.
8. Recognize the connection between inflammatory bowel disease and arthritis and how to appropriately evaluate intestinal manifestations.
9. List ophthalmologic features characteristic of spondyloarthritides.

Purpose
The overall Symposium objective is to clarify the current understanding of seronegative spondyloarthropathies in rheumatoid arthritis and to outline the clinician’s approach to diagnosis and management.

Target audience
Rheumatologists, primary care, orthopedists, radiologists, general practitioners, residents, PAs, PharmDs, APRNs, RNs, LPNs, allied health and medical students
